[redacted] an unusual Soviet vessel at buoy No. 1 off Baltiysk (see sketch below). The vessel was sailing on an easterly course at a speed of 10 to 12 knots. [redacted] it was an oil-burning ship because of the smoke coming from its stack. The ship had a straight bow, a flush deck with no sheer, and no armament. Between the bridge and the stack there was a tower which was three meters wide and 12 to 14 meters high. The hull appeared to be rebuilt, and no crew members could be seen on deck. [redacted]
